The colored quarters consist of three double houses or cabins. These houses are old and in a dilapidated condition, though they appear to be comfortable. The County Commissioners contemplate the engine, and they will no doubt do tearing them down and erecting new ones as soon as the funds of the County will permit. Up to three or four years ago the white quarters were also in a dilapidated condition, being worse than the houses now occupied by the colored inmates, Three years ago the Commissioners erect ed two double brick houses, which are very substantial and comfortable and are well ventilated. Last year they erected a frame building, 30x60 feet, with a partition through the centre. One room is occupied by the males, and the other by the females a number being in each room, The rooms are heated by stoves, and every convenience is provided for the inmates. The engine was just getting in good working order when one of the rockers (which is made of casting) of the pump handles snapped in two. This of course brought the test to an end. A new rocker has been ordered from the factory, and in a few more days the engine will be ready for work. The Conneil had not received the engine, therefore the rocker will be replaced at the expense of the manufacturers. The test, as far as it went, was very satisfactory. MR. EDITOR: We are in the habit of censuring the County Commissioners for short comings and failures to perform duties, and whenever they do their full duty we should not withhold public approbation. During the January freshet a new bridge across Rocky River, at the Emerson bridge place, was washed off, and a few days since Commissioner Norris as supervisor, with W. T. McGill as architect, got up a fine lot of timber, and in ten days put up a well constructed, substantial bridge, 71 feet long, with new rock abutments, at a cost of not exceeding $180.00. There is no doubt but the County would be greatly improved, especially in its crossings, if the County Commissioners would take the building of bridges under their personal management. The over covering was stiff pasteboard, of a dark color. This he cut off with a knife, and inside found a egg, set into a piece of wood, and fastened to it by a cloth strip, glued on. Attached to this was a string. Inside the glass ball was a liquid of some sort, almost colorless and apparently a little thicker than water. Mr. Evans brought the thing over to town and showed it to several persons, among them a druggist; and all united in the opinion, though none knew positively, that it was nitro glycerine. This disclosure made Mr. Evans a little nervous, and he was anxious to get rid of it. He offered it to the druggist; but he yelled, "Take it out!" He then offered it as a present to ome of his friends; but they declined with thanks. Then he wanted the Mayor to take charge of it; but the Mayor said he didn't want to blow up anything. Mr Evans, holding the thing very gingerly, started in a brisk walk for Scott's creek. Reaching a point West of the railroad culvert, where the stream is deepest, he gently deposited the "infernal machine" in the water and broke for the depot as fast as his legs would carry him.
